Welcome

As an artist or designer, you have already made a commitment to choosing a career path in a creative field. We believe participating in competitive opportunities is integral to the development of a robust career and a balance to studio practice. Applying to any competitive opportunity requires a great deal of work, from preparing materials to creating a statement of intent. As we've worked with students and alumni through the years, so many have told us the application process itself was a beneficial learning opportunity that helped them attain significant skills that remained useful throughout their careers.

We hope this booklet answers some of the questions you may have about where to begin your search for these opportunities. In addition to this resource, other services available to MICA students and alumni include proposal writing information, editing, application preparation support, and portfolio reviews.

Good luck with your search for opportunities, and remember we're always here to answer any questions you may have.

The Joseph Meyerhoff Center for Career Development Team

The Joseph Meyerhoff Center for Career Development

The Joseph Meyerhoff Center for Career Development offers a variety of programs and services to help MICA students and alumni further their goals in their chosen career paths. We meet with students and alumni as individuals and in groups, introducing valuable research tools and providing the necessary resources for their journeys as art and design professionals.

Hours

Professional staff members are available Monday - Friday throughout the year. Students are encouraged to schedule an individual counseling appointment for in-depth, career-related discussions. To schedule an appointment, call 410-225-2420.

Resource Library

Our resource library offers information on all aspects of career development for artists, designers, and creative professionals in a range of fields, including information about careers and organizations, job hunting, self-employment and small businesses, U.S. and international graduate and professional schools, and much more. Many of our handouts can be downloaded anytime from the Online Resource Library at www.mica.edu/careerdevelopment > Career Resources.

Weekly Workshops and Special Programming

The Career Center offers weekly workshops, informational meetings, and special programs on topics such as exhibiting your work, internships, resumes and cover letters, and job searching techniques. Internship and Career Fair, held each spring, brings organizations to represent a wide-range of regional art and design careers to MICA students and alumni seeking innovative internships and jobs.

Help with Applications for Grants & Competitions

MICA students and alumni have had incredible success with applications for grants and competitions. Career Center staff work closely with applicants and have helped MICA students build an amazing track record of success with some of the most prestigious and competitive programs. In 2008, MICA was named a "top producer" of Fulbright winners in the annual listing by The Chronicle of Higher Education. Since 2000, nine MICA undergraduates have received the prestigious Jacob K. Javits Fellowship for graduate study and four students have received the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation Graduate Scholarship.

How to Use This Booklet

The Joseph Meyerhoff Center for Career Development at MICA has compiled this sourcebook of competitive opportunities for visual artists. Seeking grants and awards is integral to an active professional artist's studio practice and can play an important role in your professional development. This sourcebook offers a sampling, not an exhaustive list, designed to generate enthusiasm and to provide information on some popular funders and resources for visual artists.

Funding Types

Grants: all types of awards including cash, support for projects, partnerships with non-profit organizations, artist-in-residence programs, travel awards, and more.

Fellowships: awards and grants for research, independent projects, and advanced-level study, often in conjunction with an academic institution.

Scholarships: awards and grants of financial aid for tuition and fees. Selection criteria may include one's past accomplishments and experiences.

Terms

- Calls for Entry: museums, commercial galleries, alternative spaces, and books or periodicals offer opportunities for artists to submit artwork for exhibition or publications through a juried process
- Contests: monetary awards or exposure and recognition in exhibition venues such as magazines, art fairs, or film festivals
- Artist Project Grants: funding to create or present new work
- Individual Artist Awards: unrestricted funding meant to encourage and sustain the individual's artistic practice
- Crowdsourcing Funding: an approach to fundraising that enables many individuals to collectively fund a specific project or small business
- Student Scholarships: funding to offset the cost of tuition and fees
- Artist-in-Residence/Artist Communities Programs: offer space and time for artists to apply singular focus to the creation of new work
- Emergency Grants: funding for artists in times of extreme or unexpected financial need
- Space Awards: competitive programs that grant studio space at no or minimal cost
- Equipment Access Awards: competitive programs that award winners with access to special equipment, such as printmaking studio keyholder programs
- In-Kind Gifts: donations of materials, merchandise, equipment, or labor

- Matching/Challenge Gifts: donors match a particular amount of money raised from other sources
- Apprenticeship/Professional Development Programs: opportunities to gain insight and professional advice by working with an established career artist
- Competitive Internships: prestigious internship programs where students or young professionals can gain on-the-job experience

Getting Started: Research Available Opportunities

A wide array of creative opportunities are listed in this sourcebook. Carefully review eligibility requirements, restrictions, deadlines, and specific guidelines for each opportunity, as it is not uncommon for these to change from year to year, and for grant cycles to vary.

NOTE: LINKS MAY CHANGE. If you find that a link is not active, type the home or main URL associated with it, then search within the site for the award information. If you are aware of other sites that may be useful to include here, please send them to careerdevelopment@mica.edu.

Although this sourcebook includes links providing direct access to other internet sites, the Joseph Meyerhoff Center for Career Development has not participated in the development of these other sites and is not responsible for the availability or content of such sites. Links to such sites are provided solely as a convenience to the user and do not constitute any endorsement, authorization, sponsorship, or affiliation by MICA of or with any such site, its owners, or providers.

Explore online resources: Begin your search using the resources in this book, which have been organized in easy-to-use categories. Learn about grant makers and look for a match.

Follow all guidelines: Set aside time to carefully read all application materials provided by foundations to make sure you meet all the requirements for the grant. Eligibility requirements can include gender, age, geography, ethnicity, career point, and education or training.

Ask questions: Each funder may designate a process and/or support staff to help guide applicants and answer questions regarding the application process. Make note of these resources and don't hesitate to call them with your questions.

Set Goals and Define Your Project

In most cases, grant applications will require a narrative component—a statement of purpose or intent that describes the project, defines goals, and establishes a timeline. This part of the application is where you must offer detail on how you will achieve your goals and what types of support you will need. Below is a sample checklist of what you may need to cover as part of your grant application materials. Please note that each application may require additional information, and requirements vary widely.

Sample checklist:

- What are the goals of your project?
- What are the goals of the funding organization?
- What stage is the project currently in?
- How are you going to accomplish it?
- How long will it take you to complete the project?
- How much funding will you need?
- What types of support do you need?
- Who is your audience?

Prepare Your Application Materials

Frequently required application materials include:

- Work samples (digital images on a CD, and sometimes color prints)
- Image list
- Application form
- Resume, short CV, or long CV
- Biography
- Artist's statement
- Statement of purpose or intent
- References or written letters of recommendation
- Application fee

MICA Scholarships and Fellowships

Contact your department chairperson or departmental office each year for information on opportunities for currently enrolled, returning, and graduating students in BFA and MFA/MA/MAT programs. The awards listed below have spring semester deadlines.

Announcements may appear through departmental emails and in Career Development newsletters. The Graduate Studies Division holds an information session in the spring semester to inform master's degree candidates of numerous available awards.

The following list is not all-inclusive. For additional sources of support, please contact the Office of Financial Aid at 410-225-2285.

The Meyer Photography Traveling Fellowship awards nearly $5,000 for photographic projects in the U.S. or abroad. In 2011, Elle Perez '11 used the award to fund her project, The Outliers. The Outliers sought to explore the margins of gender expression, record personal histories, and question the notion of gender itself. By traveling throughout the United States to meet individuals who self identify as genderqueer, Elle produced a significant body of work questioning what it means to be gender variant in 2011.

Some of the most prestigious individual artist awards do not take applications—awards are made through a nomination process. These include Anonymous Was a Woman, the MacArthur Foundation Grants, and grants from the Joan Mitchell Foundation. While you cannot apply for these awards, applying for and receiving other grants and awards can bring you to the attention of nominating committees, can help build a network of leaders in the art world who know your work, and can raise your visibility to the organizations that administer these awards.

Over the years, several MICA students and alumni have won the prestigious Joan Mitchell Foundation MFA grant, most recently James Williams '09 from Mt. Royal and Laini Nemmett '12 from Hoffberger. Jane Irish, who received her BFA in painting in 1977, won a $60,000 Pew Fellowship in 2011. In 2012, Eric Dyer '04, who earned an MFA from Mt. Royal School of Art, was named a John Simon Guggenheim Fellow.

Joan Carlos Castro (photography '99, MAT '00) was offered a full-tuition fellowship and stipend to pursue his doctorate at the University of British Columbia. Previously, he earned the Distinguished Teacher Award from the Presidential Scholars Program, and was recognized as an American Star of Teaching in 2005. A national board-certified teacher in early adolescent and young adult art, Juan began his teaching career at Towson High School in Maryland, where he taught photography and digital art and served as chair of the visual arts department. He has also taught photography as an adjunct faculty member at MICA and the Johns Hopkins University.
