ABOUT THE PROGRAMMING

OPENING OF BALTIMORE: OPEN CITY
Friday, April 1, 7–9 p.m. North Avenue Market. Celebrate the opening of the exhibition Baltimore: Open City, which will investigate the ways in which people feel welcome or unwelcome in Baltimore neighborhoods. The evening will include food trucks, a Night Lights event with Sky Space Project, and live music.

OPEN BALTIMORE INTERACTIVE WORKSHOPS WITH JAMES ROJAS
Saturday, April 2, 12–6 p.m. North Avenue Market. Urban planner, community activist, and artist James Rojas will facilitate a new method of community outreach using creative thinking to re-imagine Baltimore. Participants are given thousands of small, colorful, tactile objects and are encouraged to use their hands and minds to paint, build, and illustrate their image of the city.

PANEL: OPEN CITY AND THE LAW
Wednesday, April 6, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. The curators of Baltimore: Open City will moderate a discussion on Open City and the Law, featuring several Baltimore-based attorneys at the forefront of struggles to make Baltimore more open.

ARM WRESTLING TOURNAMENT
Friday, April 8, 7–9 p.m. North Avenue Market. The Arm Wrestling Tournament is a safe, (mostly) painless way to duke it out with an Open City friend or foe.

TOUR OF MORGAN PARK AND WILSON PARK
Saturday, April 9, 12 p.m. Tour begins at North Avenue Market. Join architect, historic preservationist, and Morgan State University professor Dale Glenwood Green for a bus tour of Morgan Park and Wilson Park, two early African American suburbs that provided housing for the faculty of Morgan State University and other African Americans who were legally barred by covenant from neighboring communities.

MORGAN PARK AND WILSON PARK HERITAGE TALK
Sunday, April 10, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. Morgan Park and Wilson Park, two early African American suburbs, are virtually unknown today despite their historic recognition. Join past and present residents for a discussion about the importance of the communities.

PANEL: CURATING BALTIMORE: OPEN CITY
Wednesday, April 13, 6:30 p.m. Windup Space, 12 W. North Ave. Join curators of Baltimore: Open City for a discussion about curating, art, and community engagement.

BALTIMORE: OPEN CITY FILM SERIES
Thursday, April 14 and 28, 8 p.m. Exact Location TBD. Curators of Baltimore: Open City will project films about Baltimore in site-specific locations. Each screening will be unique by bringing the content of the film into the participants’ experience through various activities, props, and tours.

STEWIN DINNER
Friday, April 15, 7 p.m.; $10 North Avenue Market. Join award-winning MICA alumni group Baltimore Development Cooperative and Red Emma’s Bookstore Coffeehouse for a dinner featuring high-end, locally sourced, and expertly prepared food. Interspersed with the food courses will be presentations on projects and ongoing social justice struggles. The admission fee for the multi-course dinner will fund the discussed initiatives.

OFF THE BEATEN PATH TOUR
Saturday, April 16, 12 p.m. Tour begins at the Inner Harbor, exact location TBD. Curators of Baltimore: Open City will provide a tour, offering Baltimore tourists the option to explore some of the city’s best-kept secrets.

BOOK TALK: THE INTEGRATION DEBATE: FUTURES FOR AMERICAN CITIES
Wednesday, April 20, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. The talk will examine current debates over racial integration in relation to the book The Integration Debate: Competing Futures for American Cities ( Routledge 2016). Participants include co-editors Chester Hartman (Poverty & Race Research Action Council) and Gregory D. Squires (George Washington University, Sociology Department) and book contributors Stefanie Deluca (Johns Hopkins University, Department of Sociology), Lisa Rice (National Fair Housing Alliance), Katherine Gillespie (Belman, Dane & Colfax law firm), and Roger Wilkins (George Mason University). The discussion is co-sponsored by Poverty & Race Research Action Council.

NOT IN MY NEIGHBORHOOD: TOUR OF BALTIMORE WITH AUTHOR ANTERO PIETILA
Saturday, April 23, 12 p.m. Tour begins at North Avenue Market. Author and EDS historian-in-residence Antero Pietila highlights some featured places described in his acclaimed book Not In My Neighborhood: How bigotry Shaped a Great American City (Ivan R. Dee, 2010) during a bus tour.

OPEN HOUSE WITH DAMON RICH
Saturday, April 23, 4–6 p.m. North Avenue Market. EDS visiting artist Damon Rich will conduct a workshop related to his work in Baltimore: Open City.

PANEL: ART AND THE OPEN CITY
Wednesday, April 27, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. The curators of Baltimore: Open City will moderate a discussion on Art and the Open City, which will consider the question, what can artists do to make Baltimore more open?

FORTRESS ARCHITECTURE TOUR
Saturday, April 30, 12 p.m. Tour begins at North Avenue Market. Baltimore: Open City curators lead a bus tour that highlights their selections of the city’s best and worst architecture, urban design, and planning.

THE BIG BAG OF DIRTY LITTLE TRICKS
Saturday, April 30, 7 p.m. North Avenue Market. Baltimore Free School’s Creative Committee for American Participatory Democracy premieres The Big Bag of Dirty Little Tricks, a toy theater presentation on segregation in Baltimore. The theatrical piece will tell the story of Baltimore segregation laws and their successors using song, puppets, archived images, and cardboard flats.

ACTIVATE YOUR INNER CITIZEN WORKSHOP
Monday, May 2, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. Participants will moderate a discussion on how to make Baltimore more open.

BALTIMORE MEETS ROTTERDAM: SISTER CITY ROUNDTABLE
Wednesday, May 4, 6 p.m. North Avenue Market. The curators of Baltimore: Open City meet curators of Open City: Architecture and Coexistence, which was the theme of the 2009 International Architecture Biennale Rotterdam, for a discussion about the “open city” in an international context. The talk is co-sponsored by the International Architecture Biennale Rotterdam and AIA Baltimore.
